<td>The major focus of discussions in the IGC from 1985-1992 was asylum; from 1992 the focus shifted to enforcement: inter alia, return, smuggling, technology. In 2001, the IGC held its first meeting on migration and since has also focused on specific aspects of migration, such as security and migration, legal and illegal migration, labour migration, and points-based immigration systems.</td>
<td>Since 2005, following a strategic review, IGC has three core activities: 1) asylum/refugees; 2) admission, control and enforcement; 3) and immigration and integration. There is a growing emphasis in IGC States on immigration/integration following a reduction in asylum numbers and the rising importance of these other topics. IGC currently has standing working groups on Asylum/Refugees, Immigration and Integration, and Admission, Control and Enforcement with crosscutting working groups on Data, Technology and Country of Origin Information. Each Chair identifies a theme for the duration of its Chair and holds a specific workshop on it; Ireland identified “Designing Effective Immigration Systems” as its theme for June 2006 to June 2007, which reflects the growing interest among IGC States in immigration/integration issues.</td>

<td>The Söderköping Process was launched in 2001 by the Swedish Migration Board, UNHCR and IOM to promote dialogue on asylum and irregular migration issues. Since 2004, the process has focused on transferring experiences of the newly acceded EU Member States to Belarus, Moldova, and Ukraine in aligning their migration and asylum related legislation, policies and practices with EU Acquis standards. As of 2005, based on the needs expressed by the participating governments, the process has taken a more thematic approach, bringing more focus to specific themes within asylum and migration.</td>
<td>The objective of the process is cooperation with Ukraine, Belarus and Moldova to address the problems of irregular transit migration and asylum issues through: 1) strengthening asylum systems; 2) facilitating a structured open dialogue between involved migration authorities and EU member states in the interests of creating a regional network for managing migration and asylum; 3) building government capacity in the region to manage irregular migration; 4) transferring of experience of acceding and candidate countries adapting to the EU migration Acquis and the Amsterdam treaty. As of 2005, based on the needs expressed by the participating governments, the process has taken a more thematic approach, bringing more focus to specific themes within asylum and migration.</td>

The Budapest Process is a consultative forum of more than 50 Governments and 10 international organizations, aimed at developing comprehensive and sustainable systems for orderly migration. Its purpose includes exchanging information and experiences on topics such as: regular and irregular migration, asylum, visa, border management, trafficking in human beings and smuggling of migrants, readmission and return.

In 1997 a third Ministerial Conference in Prague adopted a set of 55 recommendations relating to legal harmonisation, approximation of pre-entry and entry controls, readmission agreements and return to countries of origin, information exchange, financial and technical assistance and the fight against organised crime.

In Rhodes, in June 2003, the fourth Ministerial Conference adopted 31 new recommendations, which reflected a shift towards a more comprehensive approach in promoting migration co-operation between countries of origin, transit and destination emphasizing the CIS countries (Commonwealth of Independent States), as well as linkages to migration processes in other parts of the world.

Since Turkey took over the Chairmanship in 2006, the emphasis has been on continuity and bringing initiatives closer together.

<td>EUROPOL and FRONTEX are partners in the current phase of the Dialogue called: Towards A Comprehensive Response to Mixed Migration Flows.</td>
<td>The establishment of the MTM required long-term trust building exercises through numerous consultations with authorities on both sides of the Mediterranean. In 2003, at the end of the exploratory phase of the Dialogue, the Partner States decided on a Work Plan which structured the activities into two basic areas: Pillar I aiming at enhancing operational co-operation to combat illegal migration, Pillar II at medium and long-term issues, addressing the root causes of irregular flows. In 2004 and 2005 various activities were organized under both pillars, notably with an important conference on migration and development held in Copenhagen. Through ICMPD, it participates in conferences such as the 5+5 Dialogue, the Rabat Ministerial Conference on Migration and Development, the AU-EU Tripoli Ministerial Conference on Migration and Development, etc. The orientations and action plans of these major events are immediately reflected in the activities of the MTM Dialogue.</td>
<td>The MTM Dialogue continues to explore ways and means to concretize its activities.</td>
